

TRIPTYCH: GLASGOW TO GLENELG ... 'the History of Salt ...'

18 Archival Inkjet Prints A2 Unframed ea. 42 cm x 59.4 cm Total Size: 129 cm x 340 cm

Christopher Lawrie 2022

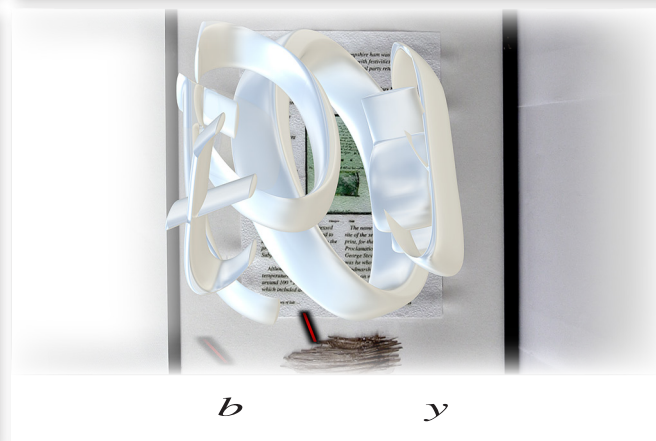

t o t h e

A b o r i g i n a l s , e n t i t l e m e n t s

The vast allegorical sea shuddered below a n

d

outcome
their ha 158 day
They ha expected occupy
they ha
purchas before t England

e x p r e s s e d

of his new office. The actual Commission
read announce he establishment
government,
appealed to the founders to prove hemselves

worthy colonists and expressed

Glasgow...

with the

The name 'Glenele' for the n o b l e arrival and commencement of his new office. The actual Commission was read announcing the establishment of government, appealed to the founders to prove themselves worthy colonists and expressed noble sentiments with regard to the Aborigines' entitlement to the conceal their disappointment with the outcome of their hazardous 158 day voyage. They had expected to occupy the land they had purchased long before they left England.

The name 'Glenelg' for the site of the settlement appeared in print, for the first time, in the s e n t i m e n t s honour of the Governor's arrival and commencement of his new office. The actual Commission read and the establishment of government appealed to the founders to prove themselves worthy colonists and noble sentiments regard to the Aborigines' entitlement to the privileges exercised by British Subjects.

to arrive were unable to conceal their disappointment with the outcome of their hazardous 58 day voyage. They had expected to occupy the land they had purchased long before they left England.

Glasgow ... 1840

The name 'Glenelg' for the site of the settlement appeared in print, for the first time, in the Proclamation. In his diary, George Stevenson wrote that it

w i t h

the celebration as a public ceremony in honour of the setting fire to the woods, the last of the colonists to arrive were unable to conceal their disappointment

Glasgow... 1840

worthy... and expressed able sentiments with regard to the Aborigines' entitlement to the privileges exercised by British Subjects.

Although the shade

The name 'Glenelg' for the site of the settlement appeared in print, for the first time, in the Proclamation. In his diary, George Stevenson wrote that it was he who suggested to Hindmarsh that 'the beautiful r e g a r d

t o t h e

of his new office. The actual Commission as read announced
the establishment
government,
appealed to the
founders to
prove themselves worthy colonists and expresse

disappointment
with the

dous page.

land

long left

The name 'Glenelg' for the

A b o r i g i n a l s '

of the colonists
to arrive were unable to conceal their disappointment
with out their 158 d
They had ected t they purchase before they left England

Glenelg" for the site of settlement appeared in print for the first time, in the Proclamation. In his diary,
George Stevenson wrote that it
was he who suggested to Hindmarsh that 'the beautiful

Subjects.

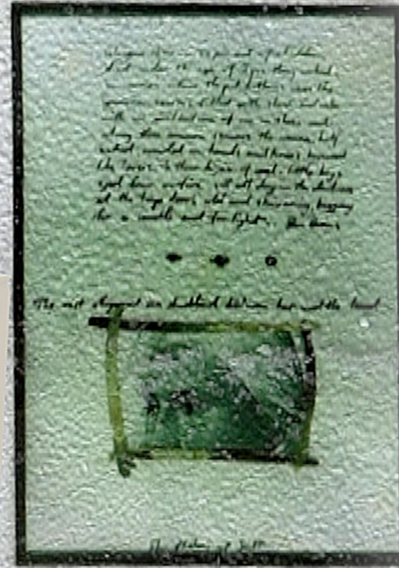

Although the shade

e n t i t l e m e n t s

and to provide for the colonisation and government thereof in 1834, we may regard the celebration as a public

While the sailors became intoxicated and the natives were setting fire to the woods, the last of the colonists to new

The

Glasgow ... 1840

and expressed with regard to entitlement to the ised by British

Although the shade
temperature was hovering around 100.° F, a cold collation which included dressed

The name 'Glenelg' was the
of the settlement rint, for the first time Proclamation. In his George Stevenson wrote
was he who suggested to Hindmarsh that 'the beau plains on which the tents we pitched' take the name of Lord Glenelg, Secretary of State for

t

o

t

h e

British House of Commons had passed 'A Bill to erect South Australia into a British Province and to provide for the colonisation and government thereof in 1834, we may regard the celebration as a public ceremony in honour of the Governor's arrival and commencement of his new reign. The Commission as re-announced the extent of government the worthy and expressed noble sentiments with regard to the Aborigines' entitlement to the privileges exercised by British Subjects.

Although the shade temperature was hovering around 100° F, a cold collation which included dressed men, with festivities concluded, the official party returned to the Buffalo.

While the sailors became intoxicated and the natives were setting fire to the woods, the of the colony to arrive unable to conceal the disappointment with the outcome of their hazardous 158 day voyage. They had expected to occupy the land they had purchased long before they left England.

Glasgow ... 1840

The name 'Glenelg' for the site of the settlement appeared in print, for the first time, in a Proclamation. In his diary, George Stevenson wrote that it was he who suggested to Hindmarsh that 'the beautiful plains on which the tents were pitched' take the name of Lord Glenelg, Secretary of State for

p r i v i l e g e s

Bearing in mind that the British House of Commons had passed 'A Bill to erect South Australia into a British Province and to provide for the colonisation and government thereof in 1834, we may regard the celebration as a public ceremony in honour of the Governor's arrival commencing of his official act. The Colonial Secretary read the proclamation of the establishment of the government, and the appearance of the founder proved themselves worthy colonists, and expressed noble sentiments in regard to the Aborigines and to the privileges exercised by the Subjects.

Although the shade temperature was hovering around 100° F, a cold collation which included dressed

Hampshire ham was served. Then, with festivities concluded, the official party returned to the Buffalo.

While the sailors were intoxicated and setting fire to the Ellingwood ... 1848

The name of the site of the settlement appeared in print, for the first time, in the year, 1848. It is noted that it was situated on the beautiful plains on which the tents were pitched, and named in honor of Lord Glenelg, Secretary of State for

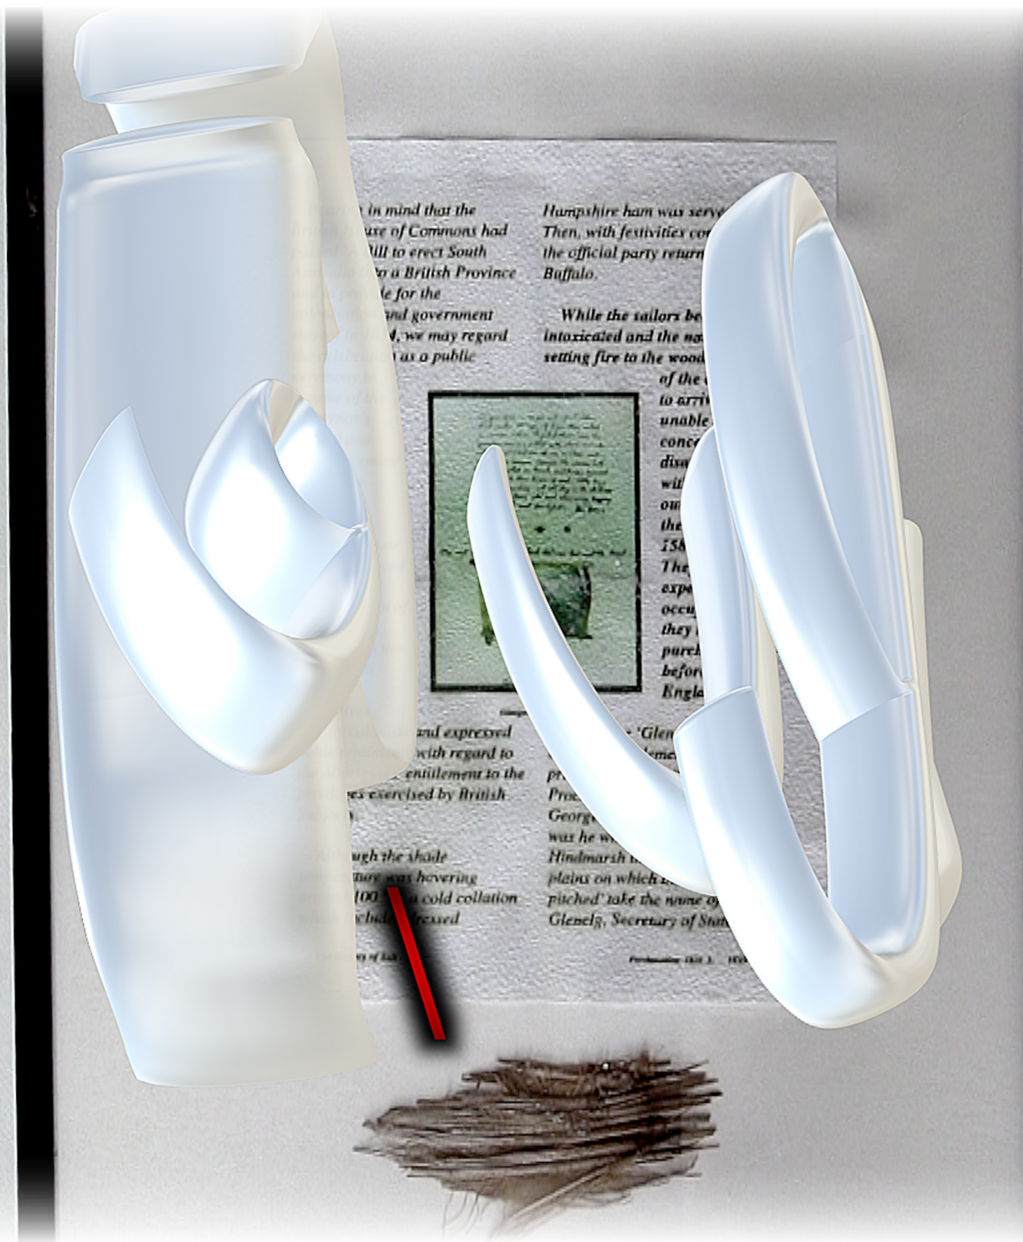

Illustration 18/18.3. 1848

exercised

b y

B r i t i s h

S u b j e c t s